

19 November 2018

Dear Parent/Carer

Crucial Support for your child

Research shows that parental involvement and school/home target setting is one of the most effective ways to improve a child's progress.

You will have recently received your child's progress check, showing their current attainment, their targets and their attitude to learning, behaviour and homework grades. Please take a period of quality time to look at your child's progress check, their homework and their exercise books in order to fill in the Parental Half termly review sheet.

The first review sheet is on page 38 of the planner. Please write a brief statement about their progress and attitude to learning.

- In the progress box, you may wish to comment on their progress in particular subjects, their areas of success or areas of concern.
- In the attitude to learning box, you may wish to comment on your satisfaction or concern with your child's behaviour and motivation in certain lessons.

Parent Half Termly Review Sheet

Please fill this in and sign it, as it will support our work with helping your child's progress and engagement in lessons.

Comment on progress: Are you happy with your child's progress towards their target grades? Are there any particular areas you have concerns over or areas you are pleased with?

Comment on attitude to learning: Are you satisfied with your child's attitude to learning in school? Please consider attendance, behaviour and motivation.

Autumn 1

Please write a brief comment about your child's progress this half term.
Please write a brief comment about your child's attitude to learning this half term.

Signed: _____

Form Tutor Signature: _____

Please write a brief comment about your child's progress this half term.	I am very pleased with my child's progress in Maths. In English I would like to see them beat their target level, and I will be supporting reading at home.
--	---

This sheet will then be used in tutor time and during progress conversations to further support your child. For these conversations to take place, please fill the form in with your child before the 30th November. Tutors will be checking the completion of these with students during form period, and discussing their progress and attitude to learning with them.

Yours faithfully

Mr J Roper
Assistant Headteacher